After breakfast, a 45-minute walk on a cobblestone path (2.5 km one way) leads you to a fine white sandy beach common in the archipelago. An endemic forest of the tall Opuntia Cactus and volcanic rock surrounds the path, making the view from the trek beautiful and mysterious. Throughout your walk, you can spot finches, yellow warblers, mockingbirds, and lava lizards. Once there, it is an excellent place for swimming, snorkeling, kayaking, or surfing. Marine iguanas, sharks, sea birds, and sea turtles can be spotted here.
